Mark Twain's "Early Stunner."

I obtained is by retaining the yam of the trapes with the Canadian thistie, and by carefully selecting and cultivating the specimens for several seasons I have secured a product that permanently combines the carliness of the former and the endurance of the latter; in other words, my new potato is a rare combination of speed and bottom, and it will do to bet en. I have christened it the Early Stunner—a name suggested by its extraordinary qualities and performances. From millions of testimonials I select the following, which came cutirely unsolicited from the celebrated Dr. Jones: "Having no land of my own I planted a pound of 'Early Stunners' in the macadamized road opposite my residence. One of my neighbors recommended an application of plaster, as he thought the road had been 'summer fallowed' too much to raise crops without a stimulant. As too much to raise crops without a stimulant. As this was my first experience in agriculture I acted this was my first experience in agriculture I seem upon his suggestion, and applied one of Alcock's porous plasters to each hill. The result was amazing. On the lat of July I had ten bushels of Buckeyes; July 2, 100 bushels of Pinkeyes; July 4, a pair of black eyes; July 6, twins: July 7, had to dig my potatoes or give bond to keep the peace. Accordingly I hired a couple of Irishmen, and the property and the results of the peace. sunk a shaft in my front yard, tunnelled under the road, and soon struck a magnificent vein of potatoes. I shall never know how many bushels there were, for a rumor got abroad that there was an irruption of predatory Fesions. Before the next morning's sun burst, the last potato had dis-appeared, and I was ruined."

THIRTY-FIFTH PARALLEL ROUTE.

The Shortest and Best Route from the Southern and Southeastern States to the States and Territories of the Pacific.

The Only Route Over Which Large Trains and Herds of Stock Can be Driven, Without Suffering and Loss, from Lack of Food and Drink.

Plenty of Grass, Water and Wood on the Entire Route.

Now, that the new wagon-road from Prescott, Arizona, to Albuquerque, and Sonta Fe, New Mczleo, is completed, and open to travel, we desire to make public the facts that the distance between the Rio Grande and California has been shortened nearly one hundred miles by said road; that the entire route, which passes near the Thirty-fifth Parallel, is, in every respect, for superior to any other with a mild, healthy climate; is well supplied with good water, grass and wood; is partially for from hostille Indians, and is, besides, nearly, if not quite 300 miles shorter than any other known Outhern route.

Dereafter, Prescott, and all the towns, settlements and military posts of Northern Arizons, will Receive their supplies from the East, over this route, and we expect to see a steady stream of emigration and large droves of stock pass over it. As high as 1,200 head of estile have been drives, in one band, over the old route, out the San Francisco Mountain, and as the new route is better applied with water than the old, twice that number of stock can be driven over it, and find plenty of
